

Cold homes can result in cold-related illnesses. Tell people you know about the FREE Home Insulation available for residents aged 70 and over!

Free loft and cavity wall insulation is now available for people aged 70 and over, if they own their own home or are privately renting! People in this age group do not have to be on any kind of welfare benefit and the offer is not means-tested; the only requirement is that the person is aged 70 or over and can show proof of age.

Do you or someone you know live in a cold uninsulated/poorly insulated home? If they either own or privately rent and they are under 70 years of age, tell them that there are grants and discounts available to help them improve the insulation in their home. People in receipt of certain welfare benefits will not have to pay anything towards the cost of the insulation. A heating grant (the Warm Front Grant) is a National Government grant available to householders who own their own home or privately rent, are on certain welfare benefits and require heating improvements.

Good insulation keeps the home warm in winter and cool in summer. It helps to reduce heating bills and can prevent cold and heat-related illnesses; particularly in vulnerable people.

If you, or someone you know wants advice and information regarding these schemes, ring the Energy Efficiency Advice Centre on freephone 0800 512 012 to find out more about these National Government-funded schemes and to arrange for a free (non-obligation) survey to be carried out to find out if insulation and/or heating improvements are required.
